BENEFITTING JAMESON ANIMAL RESCUE RANCH

AUCTION LOTS

Lot 13: Throw the Burghounds a Beane

- Greg Gregory's insider access to all things Burgundy, including as much or as little of his company as you want during your trip
- Round-trip business class airfare for two (2) couples
- Transportation in France for four (4) days
- Four (4) nights' lodging at storied guest house in Puligny-Montrachet, beautifully renovated by noted wine collector Wilf Jaeger. House includes a garden for outdoor entertaining, and is steps from the town square, as well as Michelin-recommended restaurant Le Montrachet
- Visits to Burgundy's top domaines (lunch or dinner with proprietors possible, but not guaranteed)
- Dinner with Greg Gregory at the 1243 Bourgogne Society, featuring wines from Greg's private cellar
- To be scheduled on mutually agreeable dates

Sorry, but you can't just fly off to Burgundy and expect to experience the region as an insider. It just doesn't happen like that. Not unless you spend a ton of time there, or have established a vast network of connections over years and years. We don't really know what else to tell you.

Oh – never mind. Turns out you can do exactly that, if you go along with wine ambassador Greg Gregory. Four (4) people will jet to France, business class, and spend four (4) days in a historic house in Puligny-Montrachet that once belonged to the mayor of the village. The residence has been impeccably renovated by noted Burgundy collector Wilf Jaeger, and sits just steps from Michelin-recommended restaurant Le Montrachet.

Greg will set up as many winery visits as you like: Think Leflaive, Dujac, Roumier, Bonneau du Martray, Roulot, Lafon, Lafarge, de Vogüé – or perhaps even pay homage to the world's winemaking apex at Domaine de la Romanée-Conti. One night, Greg will host you at the 1243 Bourgogne Society, which was founded by Burgundy vintners Bernard Hervet and Olivier Halley. This former convent is headquarters for many collectors, who use it for events and parties. You will enjoy a dinner prepared by a Michelin-starred chef, and Greg will pull and pour some of his wines from the club's centuries-old cellar. Don't be shocked if a few proprietors show up, having B.T.O.B.: Brought Their Old Burgundies.

Let Greg know how deep you want to go. He is happy to arrange visits, make lunch and dinner reservations, and accompany you as much or as little as you wish. Someday, with enough time in Burgundy under your belt, you might not need to have someone like Greg around. Until then, you'll be very glad that you do.
