*It is a felony to bring alcohol into Utah. Please do not attempt to bring this wine on the trip with you.

Golf? No. Tennis? Please. Croquet? You can't be serious. Perhaps no sport captures the ethos of Napa Valley quite like skiing, thanks in large part to that most honored of alpine traditions: après-ski. A recent UC Davis study showed that tasting wine fresh off the slopes, next to a crackling fire and wearing knee-high UGGs, resulted in a perceived seven-point improvement, across the board.

You and one other couple (two (2) couples total) will escape to Deer Valley, Utah, where you will have the "Sunset Lodge"—a custom-built home with all the trimmings, including a heated driveway -- to call your own for six nights and seven days. The rest is up to you. Swish down the slopes like Stein in his prime. Visit Park City's High West distillery or a local brewer. Partake in Park City's fine dining. Whatever you do, be sure to get out in the chill and stay active, because après-ski is all about warming up, and winding down.

To ease your end-of-vacation blues, an après-après-ski suitcase* containing four (4) impeccably-cellarred large-format bottles by Robert Mondavi, Paul Jaboulet, and Château Pavie will be waiting for you when you arrive back home.
